

Project facilitation support

Future battery industry projects

In 2019, the Government of Western Australia announced the Future Battery Industries initiative to support the development of the battery manufacturing industry in Western Australia. This initiative is a key part of the state's economic diversification strategy and aims to create jobs and attract investment in the region.

The Future Battery Industries Strategy provides a framework for the government's support of the battery industry. It outlines the government's commitment to providing project facilitation support to eligible projects, including assistance with land use, infrastructure, and regulatory requirements.

For more information on the Future Battery Industries initiative, please contact the Department of Jobs, Tourism, Science and Innovation (JTSI) or the Department of Mines, Industry Regulation and Safety (DMIRS).
